Defining Detached Youth Work..

Defining Detached and Outreach (NYA, Federation for Detached Youth Work)

Detached youth work uses the principles and practice of informal education to engage young people in a constructive dialogue about their needs, interests, concerns and lifestyles to support them in their personal and social development. Unlike centre based provision, detached youth work takes place in 'non-institutional' settings, spaces young people have much more control over.

Primarily, but not exclusively, the work takes place in the street, but also in parks, cafés, shopping centres, and other spaces young people have chosen to be. This makes it accessible to young people who are unlikely to attend building-based provision. Outreach work can be understood as 'reaching out to bring back' to a service or provision, typically somewhere building-based. Outreach work can also involve the taking out of a specific service or information to those not accessing those services. Outreach work can happen in many places but is particularly effective in busy spaces such as town centres, schools and transport hubs.

Case Study..

SPOTLIGHT Q2 NORTH EAST DETACHED CASE STUDY, DETACHED CONTRACT

A young person's change in character from potential risk of ASB on the street. Now active in Spotlight's universal youth offer.

We first came across this 16-year-old and his peers during our detached youth work session in the Mile End Ward (North East quadrant). He was informed about Spotlight and the type of programmes we have available across our service. He heard of Spotlight, however at the time did not seem interested and preferred to be out on the street with his friends, especially due to the sunny weather.

The North East (NE) Detached youth work team conducted targeted detached street work and started seeing the group regularly. The consistent engagement developed a solid relationship with him and his group of friends who were all at risk of committing ASB. This rapport building grew their confidence to speak to the Spotlight team

Developed new healthy relationships and life skills

We identified that he was a respected personality amongst his peers and we encouraged him to attend the Chill Out and Games sessions at St Paul's Way. He stood up from where they were congregating and said to his friends "let's go see what it's about, it's only across the road".

Later, during the day they attended St Paul's Way Spotlight for the first time. Straight away, they quickly engaged with the Chill out and Games and stayed throughout. They started asking about opening and closing times and before you knew it they became regular members of Spotlight.

The young person has already benefited from several programmes, including Chill out and Games and Career Drop in sessions. After creating his CV from scratch, the team then signposted him to WorkPath.

In addition, during the Chill Out and Games sessions, the team were able to have meaningful conversations around various issues concerning them.

Empowered to make life decisions

Oxide also known as NoS bottles or laughing gas. He and his peers were not aware of the serious health implications it could have on them. When challenged about the topic they seemed keen to find out more. The North East Detached Team contacted "Know the Risk project" and co-ordinated a day to deliver a workshop around Nitrous Oxide during ASB awareness week.

The groups progress lead them to be selected to participate in the Snow Camp two day First Tracks accredited course. Learning the basics of skiing/snowboarding, and to develop additional life skills.

This is just the beginning. His example signifies how the detached youth services complement the universal youth services which he took full advantage of.

"By coming to Spotlight I learnt so much. I was able to learn how to ski with my friends something that I never ever thought I would do before. The youth workers at Spotlight have been really supportive and helpful. I feel like coming to Spotlight has helped me and I know I can always turn to my youth workers for help in the future"
